House Ear Clinic and House Ear Institute

House Ear Clinic and House Ear Institute are affiliated with the University of Southern California School of Medicine and provide instruction in otology to the otolaryngology residents at the USC/LAC Medical Center. House Ear Clinic physicians also volunteer their time teaching specialty courses locally and around the world. To date, over 22,000 doctors have received training in our facilities.

House Ear Clinic grew from the one-man practice established by Howard P. House, MD. After completing his residency training in 1938, he traveled throughout the United States and Europe visiting renowned physicians and learning the latest treatments for patients with eye, ear, nose and throat (EENT) problems. In 1939 Howard began to practice EENT at the Moore-White Clinic in Los Angeles. Four years later, he opened his own office and limited his practice to ear, nose and throat. By this time his interest was focused on the area of ear surgery and he was one of the first ear surgeons to perform the fenestration surgery, an operation to restore hearing.
